

Inside Out Series: Self Concept III

(F2IOS003W)

Introduction of the Workshop

Self-concept refers to how you think about, evaluate or perceive yourself, including your attributes and who and what the self is. For instance, your self-expectation of academic achievement is closely associated with your self-concept of cognitive abilities. In other words, when you bear the gifted label, you might expect yourself to be a constant achiever who always has outstanding academic performance. Anything that less than A+ is considered a failure and you may even be afraid to make mistakes.

Meanwhile, you may struggle to live up to the expectations of your significant others such as parents and teachers for they might think you are gifted and so are very smart and able to master all things. As a result, you'll find yourself being exhausted and stressed to expect awards and praise in every aspect. In this workshop, you can understand how expectations of self and others have impacts on you and hence make adjustment when you are over-expected.

Introduction of the Series

The 'Inside Out Series' is a workshop series related to affective education, it covers topics like self-concept, self-management and social relationships of gifted students. This series aims at fostering gifted students' whole-person development from the inside out by enabling them to understand themselves, enhance their self-management skills, and eventually build positive social relationships with the outside world. In the workshops of the Self Concept Series, you will be able to learn on various topics related to the self-concept of gifted students, including a list of giftedness theories, explore our strengths and weaknesses, view from others' perspective etc, and most importantly, understand more about ourselves.
