2. Identify the meaning and benefits of the four psychological traits of leaders (self-awareness, self-management, social awareness, relationship management);
3. Identify ways to improve the four psychological characteristics of leaders; and
4. more hope to improve the four psychological characteristics of leaders.

Application Deadline

Please refer to the “Workshop Important

◆ Introduction of the Workshop

Gifted students develop better than their non-gifted peers in different areas, such as intelligence, academic ability in subject areas, creativity, visual or performing arts talent, leadership or psychomotor skills. In addition to gifted traits, gifted students are gifted leaders if they have higher emotional intelligence than their peers!

In this workshop, the instructor will let student members understand the emotional intelligence elements and the methods to improve the four psychological traits (self-awareness, self-management, social awareness, relationship management). As a result, student members can see how they continue to improve their traits as they progress through their whole person development journey.
