Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of the programme, members should be able to:

1. develop deeper understanding and reflection about their roles and responsibilities as consumers and Earth Citizens;
2. cultivate positive values and attitudes that support sustainable development, and make related consumption and life choices; and
3. master practical data analytical skills and infographics design techniques, so as to strengthen their application, analysing and creative presentations of information.

◆ Introduction

"Responsible consumption and production" is listed as one of United Nations' 17 Sustainable Development Goals, which are a call to action to create a better and sustainable world for all. This programme aims to help members better understand their roles and responsibilities as consumers and even "Earth Citizens", as well as how to responsibly manage and use natural resources, and properly dispose waste so as to reduce environmental hazards. Through a well-designed experiential learning journey, members will understand the concept of sustainable consumption and related lifestyle. They will also conduct desk research on a variety of topics related to sustainable consumption such as protection of endangered species, green architecture, labour rights in developing countries etc., learning how to consolidate texts, numbers and images to create infographics, and improving their ability to convey data accurately. Upon completion of the programme, members are expected to develop understanding, values, and attitudes that support sustainable development, and make related consumption and life choices. Outstanding student works will be showcased on various promotion channels of the Consumer Council during the 2022/23 school year.

This programme is under collaboration with Consumer Council.
