Reading and Writing I Course (Level I)

Creative Writing and Voice Acting for Radio Dramas

Mr Lin Chi Wo Joseph

Application Deadline
~~23 Jan~~ 10 Feb 2023
12:00 noon

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of the programme, participants should be able to:

1. demonstrate an understanding of the basic speaking skills, different elements of storytelling and script writing;

2. apply the understanding to write or re-write scripts for interesting and captivating audio dramas;

3. organise and perform their finished scripts before peers confidently;

4. reflect on and evaluate their own and others' performance.

If student members withdraw from the programme after the Application Deadline, the token will be deducted.

◆ Introduction

Covering writing, speaking, and computer skills, this course guides students to write short scripts, design sound effects, and then record them to create their own podcasts or radio dramas. Students will work together in small teams and learn to write realistic dialogues, explore how to use digital or practical sound effects to enrich their storytelling and record their stories with the help from the instructor.

This course is a modern take on the traditional reader's theatre, with a technological twist. Participants should be interested in fiction, not be afraid of working and speaking in groups, and experience in drama or public speaking would be an advantage (though beginners are also welcome).
