◆ Introduction

Tai Kwun is Hong Kong's Centre for Heritage and Arts, which is a collection of monuments and art galleries in Hong Kong. The Heritage Education Courtroom Theatre organised by a local recognised charitable organization while the drama part is composed by the professional drama group.

This education theatre is themed on the "Esing Bakery Incident", which is based on a food poisoning scandal case that happened in the early days of British Hong Kong. In 1857, hundreds of European residents living in Hong Kong were poisoned with arsenic, which authorities found in the bread of a Chinese owned store, the Esing Bakery. The owner of the bakery was accused of masterminding the poisoning but was found not guilty. To date, there is still no conclusion as to who is responsible and what the political motivation for the case was.

Tai Kwun has reinjected theatrical elements into the case. Student could find out the ins and outs of the case in an immersive experience. Through the theatre experience, students could raise the understanding of Hong Kong's judicial system and analyze its' function.
