◆ Gifted Programme Introduction

Food is indispensable in our life. It provides energy, nutrition, and satisfaction. We obtain adequate and balanced nutrients from food, and meanwhile we should try to keep away from the junk food and unhealthy stuff. There are various so-called healthy food, super food and functional food on the market. Are they really useful? Food safety is undoubtedly critical to our health. Is your food contaminated by microbes or chemicals? How to tell the risk? Science gives us tools and knowledge to debunk food myths. This course will introduce food science and technology with real-life cases. In the lab session, students will obtain hands-on experience through food processing experiments. Future food, such as genetically modified food, artificial meat (plant-based meat or lab-grown meat), and novel food processing technology will also be discussed.
