2. point out personal attributes needed for becoming a successful speech therapist;
3. recognise the cooperation among different professionals for speech therapy.

◆ Gifted Programme Introduction

Have you heard about speech therapy? What does a speech therapist do?
 “Do you help people with tongue-tie?”
 “How can you help people who can’t talk?”

These are the most common questions people asked. Our speaker Ms Eramela will tell us that her job is far more than that.

In this talk, the speaker will share stories of speech therapy. On the way, you will learn about the job nature and different employment settings of speech therapists, as well as the cooperation among different professionals (e.g., doctors, teachers, social workers). The speaker will also talk about her experiences of helping autism spectrum disorder (ASD) children by running together.

The speaker Ms Elaine ERAMELA is a speech therapist with 21-year experience working on children with speech and language impairments. She is also a sensory integration therapist, certified by the University of Southern California. She has worked in NGO and primary schools previously, and she is currently working in a private clinic. She has been working extensively with ASD children on their language and social aspects.
